Crown your little princess the Queen of Hearts this Valentine's Day with this quick and easy fun felt crown.

Materials Needed

Pellon® 931TD Fusible Midweight Interfacing
White felt
Red, purple, and pink felt
3/4" elastic
12 weight white thread
50 weight white thread

One 5" x 11" rectangle
One 12" square
Small amounts of each
One 10-1/2" piece

Tools Needed

Sewing machine and related supplies
Hand sewing needle

Cutting and Assembly Instructions

Cut two white felt 5" x 11" rectangles. Fuse the pieces of Pellon® 931TD Fusible Midweight to one of the white felt rectangles following manufacturer's instructions.

Print the crown template following instructions found on the template page. Cut out the template. Stack the two white felt rectangles together and trace the crown template onto the top piece.

Cut the crown shape. Set aside.

Cut 30 to 35 hearts of various sizes from the colored felt.

Place the hearts in various spots on the white crown with the interfacing on the back. Build layers and turn the hearts for visual interest. Not all hearts cut have to be used.

Using the 12 weight thread, hand stitch the hearts onto the crown. Sew two to three stitches in the center of each heart and knot on the back before cutting the threads.

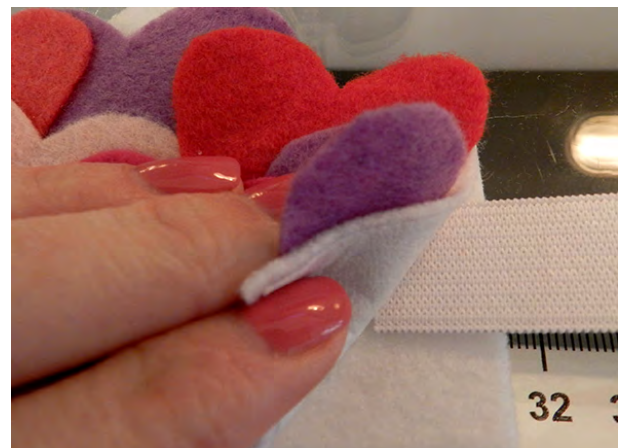

Continue to layer the hearts on the crown, anchoring each one with two to three stitches until satisfied with the final work.

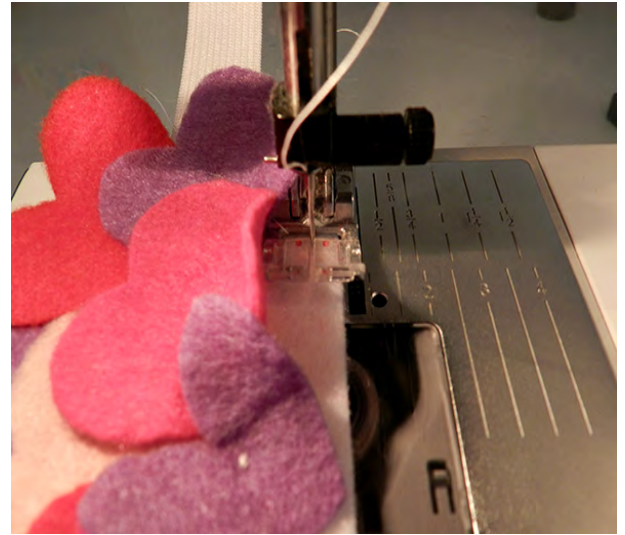

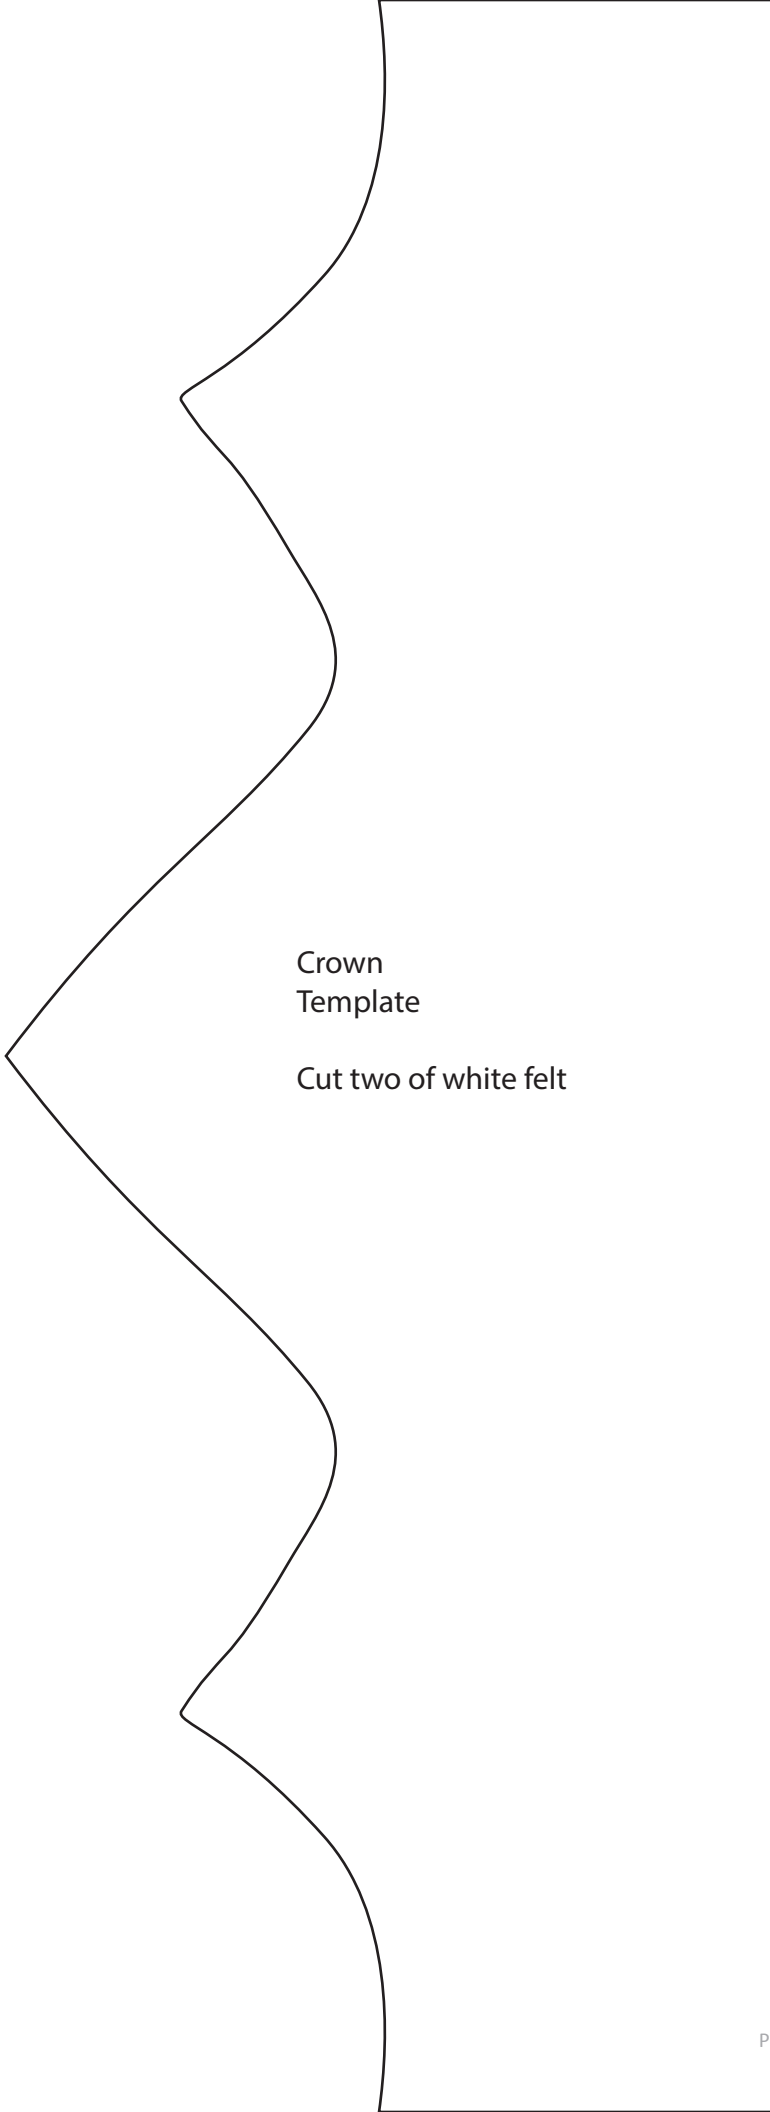

Match both pieces of the white crown and pin together.

Slide the elastic in 1/2" between the pieces of white felt on the right end.

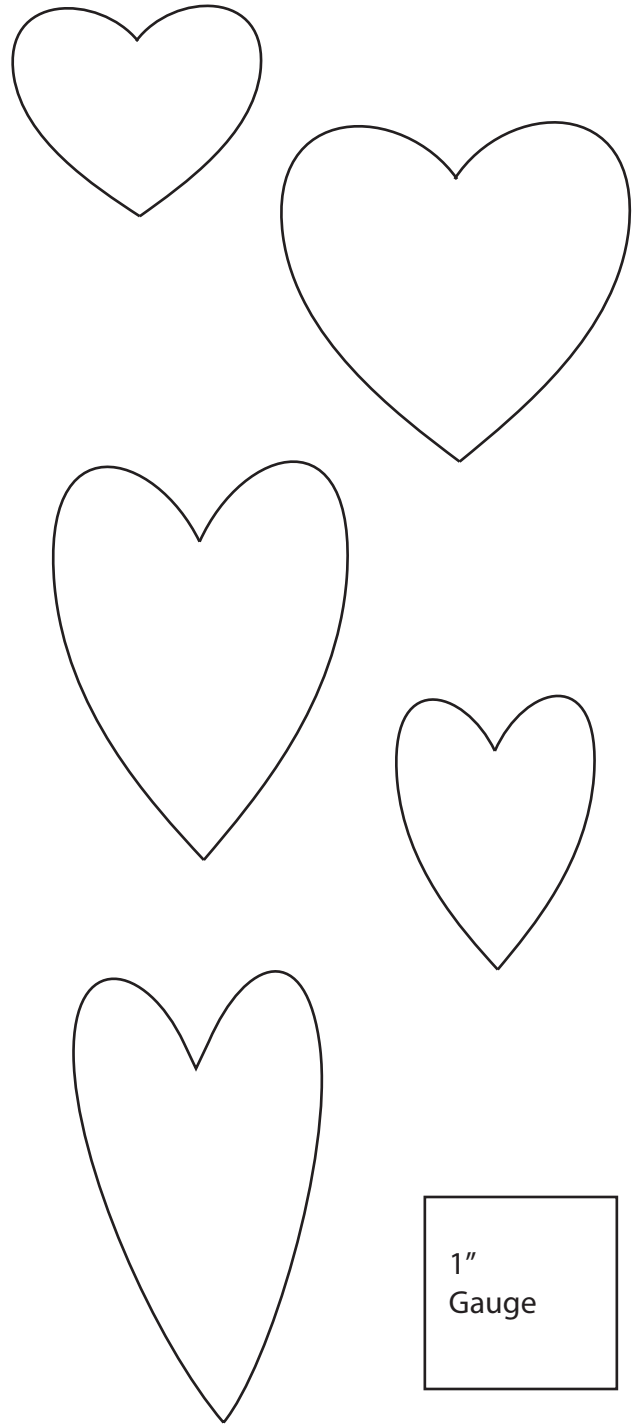

Using the 50 weight thread and starting at the right side where the elastic is placed, sew across the elastic, then backstitch for added security. Continue stitching around the entire crown using a 1/8" seam allowance. Tuck the remaining end of the elastic 1/2" into the left side of the crown and sew across it, then backstitch as before to reinforce it.
